

Term	Definition	Image
Audioshoe	A removable small part which connects a receiver to the bottom of a behind-the-ear hearing aid.
Behind-the-ear (BTE) hearing aid	A type of hearing aid that is positioned behind a person's ear.
Bluetooth ®	A method of wirelessly connecting a hearing aid to a personal remote microphone system within a range of 10 metres.
Digital Modulation (DM)	A way to transmit sound using digital signals.
Direct Audio Input (DAI)	A type of receiver that attaches on some hearing aids. It may connect through an audioshoe or directly to the hearing aid.	 Ear level receiver
Ear and hearing professional	Professionals that test, manage, and treat ear and hearing problems.
Frequency Modulation (FM)	A way to transmit sound through radio frequencies using analogue (non-digital) signals.
Microphone transmitter	A part of a personal remote microphone system that captures the sound of a person speaking and sends it to the hearing aid of the listener.	 Clip on Tabletop
Pairing	Setting up a link between a hearing aid and personal remote microphone system to allow them to communicate.
Receiver	A part of a hearing aid that receives the transmitted sound and sends it to the person's ear.	 Ear level Neck loop